The Area of Garajau

Garajau is the sort of place where you will find peace of mind. The sea and the beach are very close to you all the time, so you can swim whenever you feel like it or just seat down in one of the bars by the sea having a drink and admire the beautiful landscape surrounding you. The hotels nearby offer a program of entertainment in the evenings and they welcome visitors, with beautiful gardens, and seaside areas, they have unique conditions for diving.

Golf

Golfers will be pleased to know that the new 18-hole Palheiro golf course is no more than a 15 minutes drive. Classic Madeira hills, ridges and deep valleys have all been incorporated into the terrain to produce a dramatically interesting course, with stunning views.

Diving

The coast of Garajau forms part of the Marina do Garajau Nature Reserve. This area is extremely rich in marine life and there are plenty of companies that will help you discover it. There are immersions for all levels, and a wide variety of species: octopus, groupers, dolphins, barracudas, moray eels, manta rays and a host of coloured fish.

Fishing

As a result of its privileged situation in the middle of the Atlantic, Madeira has a flourishing sport fishing industry. Excursions departing from the south side of the island are organized, and participants frequently return with different species of tuna, as well as marlins and sawfish

Specialities to eat and drink in Garajau Village

Fish: One local delicacy is a variety of swordfish exclusive to the seas of Madeira and Japan. Its exquisite white flesh is usually served with banana and may be baked, grilled or fried. You will also find octopus and delicious shellfish such as limpets and sea snails.

Meat: With regard to meat, one highlight is the grilled kebabs threaded onto bay leaf skewers, giving them an aromatic flavour. Another speciality is "carne em vinha de alhos" - meat marinated in a mixture of white wine, garlic, bay leaves and spices for several days, and then fried.

Bread: Don't leave the island without trying the 'bolo do caco' (literally 'cake of piece'), a kind of bread made using sweet potato and cooked on a piece of broken tile.

Madeira Wine: Its peculiarity resides in a slow "cooking" period of three to six months at 50c°. Some are mixed with cognac, to help conserve them. There are 4 varieties: Secial, Verdhelo, Bual and Malvasía.
